Dodos

Dodos were birds that lived on the island of Mauritius where there was an abundance of food and almost no predators.* One of the more interesting dodo bird facts is that these birds lived in almost complete isolation. Scientists discovered that the dodo only ever lived on this island in the Indian Ocean. The simple reason for this is that they could not fly and were therefore incapable of going anywhere else.

What, then, caused their extinction? In a word: people. Dodos were unfortunately not frightened of people and so they were very easy for human hunters to kill. Sailors who arrived on the island of Mauritius from the year 1598 started hunting dodos and by 1681 these birds had disappeared. People believed the dodo to be stupid because it approached men who were armed with weapons, but these birds had no natural enemies and so had no experience with predators. They were simply curious, not stupid.

In addition to being killed by people, the dodo was also affected by exposure to new animals. The sailors who arrived on Mauritius brought with them their domesticated animals like dogs, pigs, cats and rats, which killed the dodos, ate their eggs, and destroyed their natural habitat.

One of the strangest dodo bird facts is that these birds could run quite fast. Modern scientists have deduced this fact based on the dodo bird's skeleton and the size of its legs.

4. Contesteu breument les preguntes següents:

[2 punts: 1 punt per cada apartat]

a) What can we do to stop endangered animals from disappearing?

We have to respect and take care of their habitat. We must also stop hunting them for food or their skin. We must change our mentality, because the Earth does not belong to humans. We must share it and respect it so we don't put animals in danger.

b) Why is a zoo a good place to protect endangered species?

A zoo is a good place to protect animals that are in danger because there they can't be killed/hunted and they can eat and reproduce. Some of these animals can go back to their original habitat and if they are respected, they can live and perhaps after some time, there will be a lot of them again.
