2. Read the text about Hospitality and answer the questions (5 points)

Hospitality

An invitation to meal in someone's house usually means a relaxed evening. More often than not men do not wear business suits, while the women wear comfortable rather than fashionable evening clothes.

It's a good idea to take some flowers or a box of chocolates for your hostess; some, additionally, bring a bottle of wine. It does not have to be an expensive wine. The bottle is hardly ever opened, and quite often serves as a bottle that tonight's host takes as a guest to next week's dinner somewhere else.

In most parts of England the hostess expects a short letter of thanks for the evening. Such letters follow a standard formula: you mention the food and the company and express the hope that you will meet again.

If you were invited to a friend's house for dinner in the evening.....

- What would you wear?

- Would you take any presents with you?

- What would you do afterwards?

- Choose the good and the bad behaviour at table:

e.g.: Play with your food

- Ask permission before you leave the table

- Eat with your mouth open

- Talk with your mouth full

- Say thank you when somebody serves you wine
